THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN HAS A LARGER CIRCULATION THAN ANY OTHER MORNING PAPER IN THE DISTRICT OF CO-

WEDNESDAY MORNING :::: OCTOBER 20 1875. "ANDY" CURTIN, Pennsylvania's great "war Governor." was announced to make his "first speech for the Democratic party" at Bellefonte, in that State, last night. What a sad comment this bare announcement is upon the honesty of this once honored leader ! No one would have believed it to be possible ten years ago that this man would take the stump to support such an infamous Copperhead as Judge Pershing.

PENNSYLVANIA sends cheering news of the Republican prospects in that State on November 2. Latest advices from moderate sources promise that Hartranft will be re-elected by at least fifteen thousand majority. Efforts are now being made to explain the currency question to the miners and iron-workers in its true light, and they are becoming awars that more paper money means higher prices for living without higher pay.

THE prospects are encouraging for a sweeping Republican victory in Massachusetts. The tendency to yield to the Democracy a recognition of superior merit has been checked, and party lines have been so strictly drawn as to arouse enthusiasm for the Republican nominees, while the Democrats have been sadly demoralized by their fulure to secure a proper candidate for Lieutenant Governor. It is confidently predicted that Rice, the Republican candidate for Governor, will carry the State by more than thirty thousand majority.

THE New York Tribune is not at all sur prised at the report of the Red Cloud commission. In this especial regard it reflects the opinion of the intelligent public generally. No unprejudiced man who took the trouble, before the commission was appointed, to examine the charges against the Indian Bureau, or, after it began to take testimony, to examine the evidence, expected any other kind of a report. The Tribune should have said it was disappointed that the commission did not indorse its numerous falsehoods regarding the matter. In that event the public would certainly have been surprised.

IT WAS to be expected that the New York Tribune would find fault with Senator Conkling's speech. The fact that he is supporting the regular Republican ticket in New York was a sufficient guarantee of this. But the Tribune goes on to say that he has failed to "regain the influential position in national politics" that he formerly occupied. It forgets to explain, however, what it seems to have exclusive knowledge of, and that is when he lost that position. It has been Mr. Conkling's fortune to escape the slanders of the Tribune heretofore, but now that he has appeared in the campaign against Tilden pect to become a target for its venom.

IMMEDIATELY after the sale of the President's stock on his Missouri farm the Opposition press sent up a ridiculous mourning over the rumor that the horse he rode at the battle of Vicksburg had passed under the auctioneer's hammer for the paltry sum of $56. In this rumor there was not a scintilla of truth. All the horses rode by the General his his memorable campaigns are now dead. The Vicksburg steed died some time ago while in the possession of the President, being eared for with all the kindness that associations such as there which clustered about it could suggest. This we hope, will silence the unfounded rumors which were created for no other than a sensational purpose.

LATEST ADVICES from New Jersey give most flattering promises of a sweeping Republican victory in that State. The party have placed a class of men in the field who meet the warmest approbation of the people, and from the best informed and most reliable sources it is believed that the election will result in securing both the Senate and Lower House to the Republicans. The result in Obio and Iowa, added to the splendid victory of the Republicans in the Newark charter election, has greatly encouraged the party all over the State, and correspond ngly depressed the Democrats. All that is wanted now is a full party vote to secure a splendid victory, and from all appearance every effort is being made to effect such a result.

THE New York Tribune attempts to deceive its readers regarding the present political situation by declaring that "an "enormous proportion of the voters of to-"day have come into public life since the "issues of slavery and secession were "finally closed." It should have said since those issues were partially closed, for they will remain ready to be opened again on very slight provocation just so long as the Southern people continue, as they now do, to teach their children that slavery was justifiable and secession honorable. The school-books used in all of the private and many of the public schools in the South nowadays were prepared for the express purpose of teaching the rising and coming generations in that section that the war against the Union was not only excusable, but in every way honorable.

FIGURES are generally honest, and give far greater satisfaction than a collection of assumed facts. After three months of unremitting toil, in which the Red Cloud commission scrutinized with watchful care the minutest details of the workings of the Indian service in the Northwest, they report an actual loss to the Government during the past two years' disbursement of nearly a million and a half of money the enormous sum of about five thousand dollars. To offset this the bureau saved to the Government, in one contract of transportation alone, the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, it being one thousand dollars more than enough to pay the expenses incurred by the commission in their investigation. The Detective press are welcome to all the satisfaction they can derive from these simple facts, and it is hoped they will relish them.

THE GREATEST SPEECH that has been made in New York State during the present canvass was delivered on Monday evening in Albany, by Senator Conkling. With that keen logic for which he is noted he exposed the great bugaboo canal cry of reform, proving with convincing facts that the reform, what little there has been of it, has necessarily been within the Democratic ranks. He proves that the frauds which have been the subject of Governor Tilden's war-cry are simply the fruits of Democratic misrule, for which the official heads of that party are alone responsible. The entirs speech is a strong arraignment of the Democracy for the wholesale corruption and maladministration which has existed and exists in the Empire State to-day, and it will not fail to have a weighty influence on the minds of the reading masses who are the minds of the reading masses who are suffering from the evils engendered by Bourbon supremacy.

THE wiscacres of "Newspaper Row" are now beginning to explain that they never intended to say that Senator Chandler would not accept the Portfolio of the Interior. But it is a noteworthy fact that the only journals in whose columns the truth about this acceptance appeared vesterday morning obtained their information from the sources from which the NATIONAL REPUBLICAN learned the fact of the appointment. The moral of all this is : For trustworthy news regarding such matters seek the columns of the NATIONAL RE-

SECRETARY CHANDLER.

There are few, if any, true Republicans in the country who will not hail with delight the announcement we make this morning of the appointment of ex-Senator Chandler, of Michigan, to be Secretary of the Interior. However much his enemies and the enemies of the Administration may attempt to detract from his reputation as a statesman, the public will recognize in him a man who has served the country and the Republican party faithfully for a long period of years, during which time not a single breath of suspicion has been proved against him. In short, while other public men who have held office cotemporaneously with him have fallen victims to the tongue of slander, and while some of them have been deservedly retired to private life as a punishment for their corrupt practices, he has preserved a spotless reputation, free even from the slightest imputation of evil inclination. At the same time he has earned the just reward of honest and courageous devotion to principle, and never during his entire career have his friends been called upon to apologize for any act of his official life. In the Senate he was always looked upon as one of the firmest and most consistent members of the majority party. When others faltered he was always found in the vanguard bearing aloft the emblem of undying principle and uttering the encouraging rallying cries which served to bring less fearless and sturdy men forward to the front ranks in the battles against the common enemy. During the war the cause of the Union and the soldiers of the Union armies found no more earnest and patriotic advocate than he proved himself to be. Ever ready with his purse to advance the interests of good government, his name has been connected with some of the most prominent public and private enterprises, as well as charities, in the country. But above all things he will bring to the discharge of the complicated duties of his new office an ability as an executive officer which will enable him to fill it with entire acceptability. He will not hesitate to surround himself with competent and experienced assistants, and it will be his pride to manage the affairs of the Department in such a way as to add to the wide repute he enjoys as a careful and successful business man. With this determination, sustained by the assurance that he will receive the respect and confidence of the people at large, he cannot fail to do justice to himself, to the Government and to all those who may have business with

office without due hesitation and consideration of the fact that it has hitherto proved | in the moon the young ladies carry their heads to be the maelstrom in which the fair very high. names of many of his predecessors have een engulfed. He accepted the trust. however, knowing that it had been tendered to him as a reward for his fidelity to principle, and because the President, in his determination to surround himself with capal 1: administrative officers, selected him on account of his plain straightforwardness, as well as his sterling personal and political integrity. And right here it may be proper to explain that Mr. Chandler was not, as it has been charged, a "second thought by the President." The office was tendered to one other person, and one only, before it was offered to him, and it is, perhaps, due to him to state that the Presi dent is undoubtedly better satisfied with his acceptance of it than he would have been if the first tender had been favorably received.

CUBA AND THE ADMINISTRATION. Just at this time, when, owing to the favorable prospects for the success of the Cuban Insurgents, the attention of the country is being generally attracted to the condition of affairs on that island, the following extracts from several of President Grant's messages to Congress will be read with interest. They show yery plainly that the Administration has not been an inattentive witness to the struggle for freedom and independence which has been going on "in such close proximity to our own territory" during the past seven years. They further show that the sympathies and promptings of the President have always been in thorough accord with the impulses of the American people. While there is no positive authority for the assertion that any recommendation will be made to the next Congress in addition to those contained in these extracts, there is every reason to believe that they will be repeated with most emphatic force. The necessity of legislation to prevent the traffic, direct or indirect, by American citizens in Cuban slave property will be at once admitted, and the recommendations for that purpose made by the President will be accepted as an earnest of his devotion to the cause of true Republicanism. Meanwhile it will do no harm to discuss the entire question, and it is to be hoped that ere long the Government will feel that it would be sustained by the facts and the law or international usuage in the case, as it certainly would be by the people at large, in taking some definite step in the direction of recognizing the independence

[Extract from Message of December 4, 1871.] "It is to be regretted that the disturbed condition of the Island of Cuba continues to be a source of aunoyance and of anxiety. existence of a protracted struggle in close proximity to our own territory, without apparent prospect of an early termination, cannot be other than an object of concern to a people who, while abstaining from interfer-ence with the affairs of other Powers, naturally desires to see every country in the undis-turbed enjoyment of peace, liberty and the blessings of free institutions. Our naval com-manders in Cuban waters have been instructed, in case it should become necessary, to spar no effort to protect the lives and property of no effort to protect the lives and property of bona fide American citizens, and to maintain the dignity of the flag. It is hoped that all pending questions with Spain, growing out of the affairs in Cuba, may be adjusted in the spirit of peace and conciliation which has hitherto guided the two Powers in their treatment of such questions."

[Latract from Message of December 2, 1872.] "It is with regret that I have to announce of the disturbed condition of Cuba. No advance towards the pacification of the discontented part of the population has been made. While the insurrection has gained no advantages, and exhibits no more the elements of power or of the prospects of ultimate success than were exhibited a year ago, Spain, on the other hand, has not succeeded in its re-pression, and the parties stand apparently in the same relative attitude which they have octhe same relative attitude which they have oc-cupied for a long time past. This contest has lasted now for more than four years. Were its scene at a distance from our neighborhood we might be indifferent to its result, although humanity could not be unmoved by many of its incidents wherever they might occur. It is, however, at our door.

"I cannot doubt that the continued maintenance of slavery in Cuba is among the

It was but a feeble step towards emancipation, but it was the recognition of right, and was hailed as such, and exhibited Spais in harmony with sentiments of humanity and justice and in sympathy with the other powers of the Christian and civilized world. world.
"Within the past few weeks the regulation of emancination

Within the past tew weeks the regulations for carrying out the law of emancipation have been announced, giving evidence of the sincerity of the present Government to carry into effect the law of 1870. I have not failed to urge the consideration of the wisdom, the policy and the justice of a more effective system for the abolition of the great evil which tem for the abolition of the great evil which oppresses and continues a bloody and destructive contest close to our border, as well as the expediency and the justice of conceding reforms of which the propriety is not questioned. Deeply impressed with the conviction that the continuance of slavery is one of the most active causes of the continuance of the unhappy condition in Cuba, I regret to believe that citizens of the United States, or those claiming to be such are large holders in Cuba. claiming to be such, are large holders in Cuba of what is there claimed as property, but which is forbidden and denounced by the laws of the United States. They are thus, in defiance of the spirit of our own laws, contributed the spirit of the spirit of our own laws, contributed the spirit of our own laws, contributed the spirit of the spirit of our own laws, contributed the spirit of the spirit of the spirit own of the spirit of th uting to the continuance of this distressing and sickening contest. In my last annual message I referred to this subject, and I again recommend such legislation as may be proper to denounce, and if not prevent, at least dis-courage American citizens from holding or dealing in slaves."

[Extract from the Annual Nessage to Congress, December 1, 1873.] "The pro-slavery and aristocratic party in Cuba is gradually manifesting itself in more and more open hostility and defiance of the home Government, while it still maintains a po-litical connection with the Republic in the Peninsula; and although usurping and defying the authority of the home Government, whenusurpation or defiance tends in the ever such usurpation or detiance tends in the direction of oppression or of the maintenance of abuses, it is still a power in Madrid and is recognized by the Government. Thus an ele-ment more dangerous to continued colonial re-lations between Cuba and Spain than that intions between Cuba and spain that that which inspired the insurrection at Yara—an element opposed to granting any relief from misrule and abuse, with no aspirations after freedom, commanding no sympathies in generous breasts, aiming to rivet still stronger the shackles of slavery and oppression—has seized many of the emblems of power in Cuba, and under professions of lovalty to the mother and, under professions of loyalty to the mother country, is exhausting the resources of the island, and is doing acts which are at variance with those principles of justice, of liberality and of right which give nobility of character to a republic. In the interests of humanity of civilization and progress it is to be hoped that this evil influence may soon be averted." [Extract from Message to Congress, December 7, 1874.]
"The deplorable strife in Cuba continues

"The deplorable strile in Cuba continues without any marked change in the relative advantages of the contending forces. The insurrection continues, but Spain has gained no superfority. Six years of strife give to the insurrection a significance which cannot be denied. Its duration and the tenacity of its adherents, together with the absence of manifested revers of superscript on the part of fested power of suppression on the part of Spain, cannot be controverted, and may make some positive steps on the part of other Powers a matter of seif-necessity. I had confidently hoped at this time to be able to announce the arrangement of some of the important ques-tions between this Government and that of Spain, but the negotiations have been protracted. The unhappy intestine dissens Spain commands our profound sympathy, and must be accepted as perhaps a cause of some delay. An early settlement, in part at least, hoped. In the meantime, awaiting the results of immediately-impending negotiations, I defer a further and fuller communication on the subject of the relations of this country and Spain."

Much of the Western energy is very comnendable, and there is one little instance which we cannot refrain from mentioning. The Cincinnati Enquirer, which goes to bed with a warm curse for the Eastern Democrats in its mouth and arises in the morning with the curse still heating, took time by the forelock at the last election, but it appears that time circum-vented it after all. The editors of the paper, in order to free themselves from answering the questions of the populace, had a huge screen and magic lantern prepared "to show Allen's majorities by counties," but it didn't count.

This is an old song; yet if it had any merit whatever the people would gladly listen to its music. But it all vanishes in words. Samuel Tilden has been talking reform to the people of New, York for nearly fifteen months, and with the exception of the indictment of two or three unimportant personages, nothing has been accomplished. This is not the reform which wins the applause of the people. This age is altogether too enlightened to be hoodwinked by shams, let them take whatsoever form they will, and if Mr. Tilden depends upon what he says for his Presidential successes, the large end of the horn will know him no more for ever.
